Property is personal

The standards that make a board, a brochure, a window card and a website look like they came from the same family. Read it once. Keep it close.

What is in here

Twenty-three spreads. The first four say what the brand is. The rest say how to build it, in the order you will need them, and the last three say what is still open and what to check before anything goes out.

Every measurement in this book has been checked rather than estimated. Where a rule exists to protect legibility, the ratio is printed next to it.

If you read nothing else

Everything in this book resolves to nine decisions. Get these right and the work will look like O'Neill before anyone reads a word of it.

SAY Property is personal Confident, warm, specific. Never salesy.	SHOW Natural light Architectural, uncluttered, honest colour.	SET IN Sinhala MN and Inter Two families. Never a third.
BUILD ON Sage Grey Half of everything. Basalt for type, Stone to rest the eye, Deep Sage as a graphic only.	LEAD WITH The O'Neill mark Always dominant, always with its clear space.	CAMPAIGN IN Own It · Lease It · Achieved Paired with the plain word wherever status must be instant.
PROTECT Whitespace If it feels empty, it is probably right.	NEVER Gold, gradients, clichés Premium comes from restraint, not decoration.	TEST WITH Is the property the hero? If the answer is the agency, start again.

A family name, not a franchise

O’Neill Property is a Northern Gold Coast agency built around one belief: property is personal. The name on the board is the name the family answers to, and that is the reason the standard has to hold from the first appraisal to the last signature.

The brand should feel established without being old-fashioned, sophisticated without being pretentious, and thoroughly professional without losing its warmth.

THE PROMISE

Listen first, give you the straight version, and run the campaign properly to the end.

WHO IT IS FOR

Owners and buyers on the northern Gold Coast, from a first apartment to a home on the water. The same standard at every price point.

WHAT IT IS NOT

A franchise template with a local name dropped into it. Nothing in this book should be reachable by editing someone else’s.

Three lockups, one mark

There is no fourth version. If a placement will not take one of these three, the placement is wrong, not the logo.

Primary

The default. Wordmark over PROPERTY. Use it wherever there is room to set it at 40 mm wide or more: boards, covers, stationery, the site header.

Secondary

The wordmark alone, for tight horizontal bands where the descender line would crowd: email footers, ad bars, vehicle livery, sponsor rows.

Icon

The O and N monogram. Avatars, favicons, stamps, watermarks and anywhere the full name already appears in the surrounding copy.

Give it the height of the O

The exclusion zone on every side is the cap height of the O in the wordmark. Nothing enters it: no type, no rule, no photograph edge, no other logo, no portal badge.

Minimum sizes. Primary 40 mm wide in print, 150 px on screen. Secondary 28 mm, 110 px. Icon 8 mm, 32 px. Below those the counters in the O and the apostrophe start to fill in, and on a signboard at speed it stops reading as a name.

On a vehicle or a building fascia, set the clear space from the physical panel edge, not from the artwork bounding box. A mark that sits hard against a shut line reads as a sticker.

The dashed line is the boundary, not artwork. It never prints.

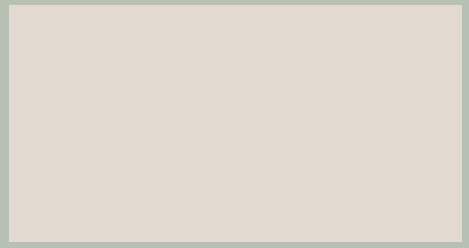

Four finishes, chosen by ground

Pick the version that gives the mark the most contrast against what is behind it. Never tint the artwork to make a fifth.

BASALT ON LIGHT

The default. Any Stone, paper or pale photographic ground.

STONE ON BASALT

Dark grounds, night photography, the footer.

STONE ON DEEP SAGE

Campaign fields and covers where sage carries the whole panel.

SAGE GREY ON BASALT

The softer dark treatment, at 6.1:1. The social avatar, where full Stone reads too stark.

Over photography, use Stone or white and place the mark on the quietest part of the frame. If no part of the frame is quiet enough, the mark goes on a solid band beside the picture rather than being given a drop shadow.

The app icon is not settled. Stone on Basalt and Sage Grey on Basalt are both nominated for it in this edition. See spread 22.

One right way, six wrong ones

Every failure below has happened to a real agency mark. The artwork is supplied as SVG, so none of them are necessary.

Correct
Supplied artwork, unmodified, in a brand colourway, with its clear space.

Do not stretch
The proportions are drawn, not typed. Scale both axes together.

Do not rotate
The mark sits square to the format, always.

Do not recolour
Four colourways exist. Gold is the palette this brand was built to avoid.

No shadows or effects
No bevel, no glow, no outline, no gradient fill.

Do not fade it out
A mark at 40 per cent is a watermark. Use the Sage colourway instead.

Do not crop or box it
Nothing is added beside it, nothing is cut off it, no rule is drawn around it.

Four values, and no fifth

Sage Grey is the ground, not the accent. Fifty per cent of the brand is that one colour, thirty is Basalt, fifteen is Stone and the last five is Deep Sage doing graphic work.

SIGNATURE · 50%

Sage Grey

The rest. A quieter ground for long reading, and the mark reversed out of dark photography.

ANCHOR · 30%

Basalt

#3A3A3A 58 58 58

All type, frames, fascias, footers and any panel that has to hold its own against a photograph.

GRAPHIC · 5%

Deep Sage

#839C83 131 156 131

Rules, markers, icon strokes and small fields. A graphic colour, never a type colour.

Hex values are taken from the master artwork, not sampled from a screenshot. CMYK is a printer's starting point, never a substitute for a proof, and Basalt as a flat build will look weak across a large printed field: ask for a rich black.

Stone should usually be the paper rather than an ink. Printing a near-white flat across a sheet costs money and flattens the texture the identity depends on.

One value to change. Basalt is #3A3A3A in the master artwork. The website currently ships #2D2D2D. The artwork wins; the site is corrected to #3A3A3A. Specified again on spread 20.

How much of each

Half of everything is Sage Grey. It is the field the brand is built on, not an accent applied to a white one, and it is the colour people will use when they describe the identity to someone else.

Sage Grey 50 · Basalt 30 · Stone 15
Deep Sage 5

This book is set to its own rule. Of twenty-three spreads, nine are Sage Grey, seven are Stone and seven are Basalt, two of those Basalt sheets given over to a photograph rather than to type, and Deep Sage appears only as rules and markers.

Measured, not assumed

WCAG 2.1. Body copy needs 4.5:1. Large text, meaning 24 px and above or 19 px bold, needs 3:1.

Sage Grey on Basalt	6.1 : 1 · ALL TEXT
Basalt on Stone	8.2 : 1 · ALL TEXT
Stone on Basalt	8.2 : 1 · ALL TEXT
Basalt on Sage Grey	6.1 : 1 · ALL TEXT
Deep Sage on Stone	2.2 : 1 · DO NOT SET TYPE
Stone on Sage Grey	1.3 : 1 · DO NOT SET TYPE

> The sage rule. No sage in this palette can carry body copy: not Sage Grey, not Deep Sage. If words have to be read, set them in Basalt, or put them on Basalt.

Aa

DISPLAY

Sinhala MN

Headlines, campaign statements, addresses on a board, the moments that carry the name. One weight. Never below 18 px, where its contrast breaks down and it stops looking premium.

Aa

TEXT

Inter

Everything that has to work hard: body copy, navigation, agent details, captions, forms, signage information. Weights 300, 400, 500 and 600. Nothing heavier.

Two families, never a third. Where the display face is unavailable, substitute a restrained high-contrast serif and keep Inter as the working sans. Which serif is still an open decision: see spread 22.

One display size per layout. Two competing headline sizes read as a template rather than a design.

Measure runs to about 65 characters. Never justify, never hyphenate, never track body copy.

Seven sizes, used in order

Sizes are the screen reference. In print, scale the whole set together rather than picking new numbers for each piece.

DISPLAY	Property is personal	SINHALA MN · 64 / .95
HEADING	A considered approach	SINHALA MN · 44 / 1.15
SUBHEAD	Northern Gold Coast	SINHALA MN · 28 / 1.25
EYEBROW	RECENT RESULTS	INTER 600 · 11 / .24EM
BODY LARGE	A rare north facing residence on a quiet Hope Island street, positioned to take the water and the afternoon light.	INTER 300 · 19 / 1.7
BODY	Four bedrooms, a considered renovation throughout, and direct boating access from a private pontoon.	INTER 400 · 16 / 1.75
CAPTION	4 BED · 3 BATH · 2 CAR · 812 M²	INTER 500 · 12 / .12EM

Tracking. The wordmark is fixed and never adjusted. Eyebrows .24em, captions .12em, both uppercase only. Display sits at zero to .01em, a serif needs almost none. Body copy is never tracked.

Caps. Reserved for lockups, eyebrows and captions. A paragraph in all caps stops being read and starts being scanned, which is the opposite of what listing copy needs.

Headlines. Short, with space around them. If a headline needs a third line at display size, the headline is too long, not the type too big.

An agent speaking, not a brochure

Knowledgeable, warm, decisive and brief. Lead with what matters to the client, prefer a specific fact to an inflated adjective, and write like a person rather than a corporation. Australian English throughout.

A PRICE REDUCTION

Direct and unapologetic.

A MISSED RESULT

Honest, brief, forward looking.

MARKET COMMENTARY

ON BRAND

“North facing, 812 m², and the only home on the street with a private pontoon. We think it sells in three weeks.”

OFF BRAND

“An absolutely breathtaking, once in a lifetime masterpiece that will take your breath away. A true must see!”

Say it the same way

A consistent vocabulary is the cheapest brand asset there is. It costs nothing to print and it makes every touchpoint recognisably O'Neill.

STANDARD TERM	O'NEILL LANGUAGE	NOTES
For Sale	Own It	Hero campaign device. Use it selectively.
Coming Soon	Preparing It	Pre market and soft launch.
Sold	Achieved	Pair with SOLD where a portal or the law needs the plain word.
For Lease	Lease It	Rental campaign device.
Open Home	Open	The date and the time are the hero, not the label.
Listing	Property / Residence / Home	Choose by context.
Key Features	The Details	Editorial, and less generic.
Recent Sales	Recent Results	Preferred on collateral.
Vendor	Seller / Owner	Client facing language, not industry language.
Buyer database	Buyer Network	More human, and more premium.
Team	Our People	Useful on the site. TEAM stays acceptable in navigation.

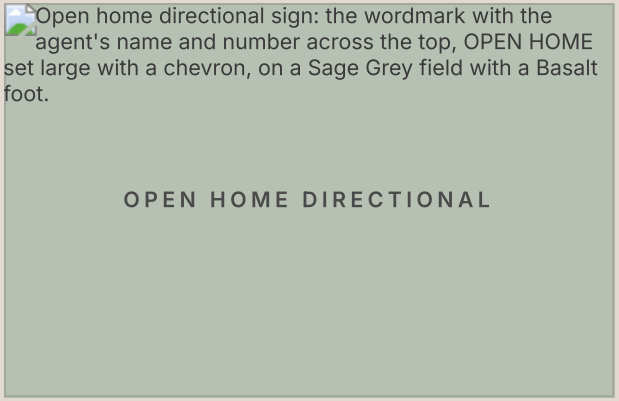

TWO WORDS THE BRAND DOES NOT OWN

Property Management and Property Appraisal. Both are searched for by name. Branding them would cost enquiries, so they stay plain.

> The campaign words are a device, not a replacement. Where status has to be instant, from the footpath or in a portal thumbnail, the plain word runs with them: OWN IT beside FOR SALE, ACHIEVED beside SOLD.

Read it at fifty kilometres

A board has about two seconds of a driver's attention. One message, one mark, one number. Everything else belongs on the phone they will pick up afterwards.

Open home directional sign: the wordmark with the agent's name and number across the top, OPEN HOME set large with a chevron, on a Sage Grey field with a Basalt foot.

OPEN HOME DIRECTIONAL

Photo board: the wordmark above OWN IT, the address and the bed, bath and car line, with the agent on a Basalt band at the foot.

PHOTO BOARD

THE RULES

One campaign word. Own It, Preparing It, Lease It or Achieved. Never two on the same board.

The mark sits on Basalt. A dark head band reads from further away than a mark floating on sage, and it stops the board disappearing against a hedge.

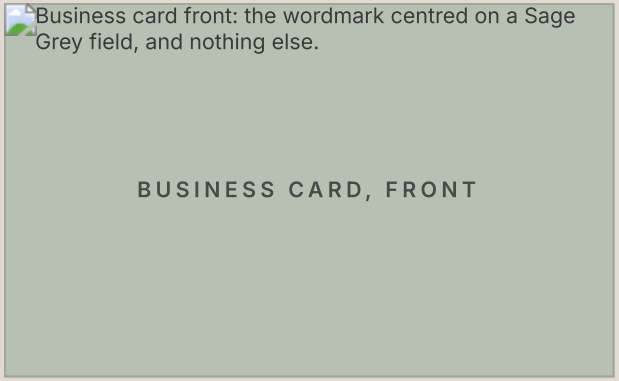

The agent is the smallest element. Name, then number, at the foot. A face on a board is optional; a legible phone number is not.

Sage carries display type only. Basalt on Sage Grey measures 6.1:1 and is fine at any size. Nothing lighter than Basalt goes on sage.

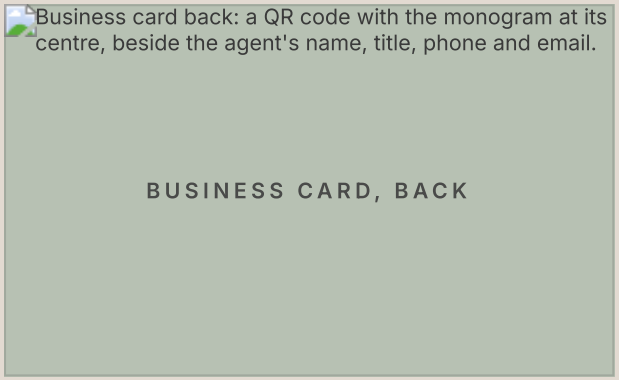

Directional arrows point, they do not decorate. One chevron, on the side it points to, at the size of the campaign word.

The same system, smaller

Nothing new is invented at A4 or at card size. The same field, the same mark, the same one campaign word, set to the same ratio.

CARD, FRONT

CARD, BACK

STOCK AND FINISH

Uncoated, always. 350 gsm for cards, 170 for flyers. Gloss undoes the whole palette: these are chalky, natural colours and a shine reads as budget.

Stone is the paper. Specify a warm uncoated stock rather than printing a near-white flat. It saves ink and it looks better than the ink would.

Ask for a rich black. Basalt as a flat single black will look grey and patchy across a large solid.

No foil, no spot gloss, no bevel. If a piece needs lifting, lift it with paper weight or an edge paint in Basalt, never with shine.

One display size per piece. The campaign word is the only thing set large. The address is the next size down, the agent smaller again.

Let the light do the work

Natural light, honest colour, architectural framing. The property is the hero. If a viewer notices the photography before the house, the shoot has failed.

DO

Shoot early or late. Long shadows and warm light suit the palette; midday sun blows out the water and flattens the render.

Square the verticals. A leaning doorframe is the fastest way to make a premium home look like a rental listing.

Leave the room breathing. Fewer props, no staged towels folded into swans, nothing that will not be there on inspection day.

Keep colour honest. Grass is not emerald, timber is not orange, and the sky over the Broadwater is not turquoise.

DO NOT

Composite a sunset that was not there, or drop a sky in that does not match the shadows on the ground.

Run a filter, a vignette, or a heavy graduated wash across the frame.

Set type across the middle of a photograph. Type sits on a solid field beside the picture, or on the quietest corner of it.

Use a stock image of a house that is not the house. Ever.

TYPE ON PHOTOGRAPHY

Where Stone type must sit on an image, the image gets a measured scrim, not a guess. Stone needs 4.5:1 against the pixels actually behind it, and a flat sage wash cannot deliver that at any opacity.

Every scrim on the website was measured against the real frame. Those ratios are recorded in the page files, not in this book.

> Prefer the field to the scrim. A headline on a solid Basalt, Sage Grey or Stone panel beside the picture always beats a headline fighting the picture.

What a correct frame looks like

Two frames from one O'Neill shoot. Read them for the light, the verticals and the restraint, not for the house.

O'NEILL PROPERTY PHOTOGRAPHY

Uncropped, at the ratio it was shot. Natural light from one side, verticals square, styling kept to what the room already holds.

PHOTOGRAPHY EXAMPLE

Cropped to a portrait frame for a narrower column. The crop moves, the colour does not: no wash, no vignette, no replaced sky.

THE TEST

Is the property the hero? If the answer is the agency, start again.

O'Neill Property photography. A wide frame carries the address, the water and the street in one read, which is why nothing is ever set across it.

What the build has to match

ROLE	NAME	HEX	RGB
Signature field	Sage Grey	#B7C1B3	183 193 179
Neutral ground	Stone	#E2DAD1	226 218 209
Anchor and all type	Basalt	#3A3A3A	58 58 58
Graphic detail only	Deep Sage	#839C83	131 156 131

CORRECTION REQUIRED

The site ships Basalt as #2D2D2D. The master artwork is #3A3A3A. Change the token, not the artwork, and re-check any scrim measured against the old value.

One page for whoever is in the stylesheet. Values, sizes and the one correction this edition asks for.

Logo minimums on screen. Primary 150 px wide, Secondary 110 px, Icon 32 px. Clear space on every side is the cap height of the O, including inside a header that is already tight.

Type. Inter 300, 400, 500 and 600 for everything functional. Sinhala MN for display only, never below 18 px. Measure to about 65 characters; never justify, never hyphenate, never track body copy.

Sinhala MN is Apple-only. Windows and Android need a nominated substitute before launch, and the CSS stack in the meantime must fall back to a restrained serif rather than to a system sans. See spread 22.

No sage carries body copy. Not Sage Grey, not Deep Sage, at any size or weight. Set text in Basalt, or set it on Basalt.

Type over images. Measure the scrim against the actual frame, per frame, to 4.5:1 for Stone. Record the ratio beside the component. A flat sage wash never qualifies.

Retired name. oneillgroup.com.au is no longer the name. Anywhere it still appears, in markup, metadata, redirects or artwork, it comes out.

When in doubt, take something away

This brand is built on restraint. Almost every way it can go wrong is an addition: one more colour, one more typeface, one more badge, one more adjective.

THE TEST

Is the property the hero?

If the answer is the agency, start again.

NEVER

- Gold, metallics, gradients or glossy black.
- A third typeface, or a script anywhere.
- Sage as a full page flood.
- Superlatives: stunning, breathtaking, must see, once in a lifetime.
- A dash used as punctuation. Rewrite the sentence instead.

ALWAYS

- Australian English.
- The clear space, even when it is inconvenient.
- One campaign word per piece.
- Measured contrast wherever type meets a photograph.
- The plain word beside the campaign word where status must be instant.

WHERE A SUPPLIER PUSHES BACK

Portals, franchisor templates and sign fabricators will all ask for a compromise at some point. Grant the smallest one that solves their problem, write down what was granted and why, and never let it become the new default.

WHERE THIS BOOK IS SILENT

Nothing here is a licence to invent. If a piece needs something this book does not cover, the answer is the nearest rule it does cover, applied with less rather than more.

Not settled in this edition

Six items. Each one is either a decision nobody has made yet or a correction that has been decided and not yet shipped. None of them are guessed at elsewhere in this book.

DECIDED, NOT YET SHIPPED

The Basalt value on the website

The master artwork is #3A3A3A. The site ships #2D2D2D. The artwork wins. Until the token is changed, the two do not match and any contrast measured against #2D2D2D has to be taken again.

OPEN DECISION

The display face substitute

Sinhala MN is available on Apple devices only. A restrained high-contrast serif has to be nominated for Windows, for Android and for any printer that cannot embed the original. Until it is, the CSS in this file falls back to Georgia and then Times: a rendering fallback, not a nomination.

OPEN DECISION

Pantone, paint and CMYK

References are still to be selected against a physical swatch book, under the light the sign or the paint will actually live in. No CMYK build is published in this edition: the printer sets one and proofs it, and Basalt across a large field is specified as a rich black.

PENDING REPRINT

The retired domain

The business card and the photo board still carry oneillgroup.com.au. It comes off at the next print run, not by overprinting, and it comes out of the site at the same time.

CONTRADICTION TO RESOLVE

The app icon colourway

Spread 07 nominates Stone on Basalt and Sage Grey on Basalt for the app icon. Both cannot be the default. Pick one, and leave the other to the social avatar.

RECORDED ELSEWHERE

The measured scrim ratios

Every scrim on the website was measured against its real frame, but the ratios live in the page files rather than in this book. Anyone setting type on a new image measures that image, and records the number where the next person will find it.

Production note. The four collateral photographs on spreads 15 and 16 load from ./brand-book-assets/. Keep that folder beside this file, or the frames show their labels instead.

Before it goes out

Nothing new on this page. Every line is a rule from an earlier spread, in the order a piece of work usually breaks.

THE MARK AND THE FIELD

- [ ] One of the three supplied lockups, unmodified.
- [ ] Clear space on all four sides is the cap height of the O.
- [ ] At or above minimum size: 40 mm / 150 px primary, 28 mm / 110 px secondary, 8 mm / 32 px icon.
- [ ] Colourway chosen for contrast against the ground behind it.
- [ ] Sage Grey is carrying the piece, not accenting it.
- [ ] Deep Sage is doing graphic work only.

TYPE AND WORDS

- [ ] Two families only: Sinhala MN for display, Inter for everything else.
- [ ] One display size in the layout.
- [ ] No type set in any sage, at any size.
- [ ] Body copy measures 4.5:1 against its ground; large text 3:1.
- [ ] One campaign word, with the plain status word beside it where clarity is required.
- [ ] Australian English, no superlatives, no dash as punctuation.

IMAGE AND PRODUCTION

- [ ] Natural light, squared verticals, honest colour, no replaced sky.
- [ ] No type across the middle of a photograph; measured scrim or a solid field.
- [ ] Uncoated stock, Stone as the paper, rich black for large Basalt.
- [ ] No gloss, foil, gradient, bevel or shadow anywhere.
- [ ] oneillgroup.com.au does not appear.
- [ ] The property, not the agency, is the hero.
