O'NEILL PROPERTY BRAND GUIDELINES
Content draft, Edition Two — content only, no layout
Prepared by 10x Visuals

Note on this draft: this is a condensed rewrite of Brand Book Edition One. It cuts section-divider pages, repeated scene-setting copy and duplicated explanations, and keeps every rule a designer, printer, developer or agent actually needs to check work against. 26 pages become 16. Nothing load-bearing has been removed, two inconsistencies from Edition One have been corrected (flagged below and in the document), and two decisions are still open and are listed on the last page rather than left unresolved mid-document.

O'NEILL PROPERTY
Brand Guidelines · Edition Two

Property is personal.

One standard, from the first appraisal to the last signature. This document is what makes a board, a listing, a card and the website look like they came from the same agency.

Prepared by 10x Visuals for O'Neill Property.

Page 2: Contents

1. The brand — overview, promise, audience, the nine rules
2. The mark — lockups, clear space, size, colourways, misuse
3. Colour — the four values, their proportions, approved text pairs
4. Type — the two families, the scale, how to set them
5. Voice — tone, on brand vs off brand, the word book
6. Signage and print — boards, cards, stock, finish
7. Photography — what a shoot must and must not do
8. Website and digital — build spec and known fixes
9. Quick reference — the one page to check before anything goes out
10. Open decisions and contact

Page 3: The brand

O'Neill Property is an independent Gold Coast agency built on the O'Neill name, not a franchise template with a local name added to it. The standard has to hold from the first appraisal to the last signature, because it is the family's name on the board.

The promise: Listen first, give the straight version, and run the campaign properly to the end.

Who it is for: Owners and buyers on the Gold Coast, from a first apartment to a home on the water. The same standard at every price point.

Flag: Edition One scoped this to "Northern Gold Coast" specifically. Confirm whether the service area is Northern Gold Coast or Gold Coast-wide before this goes to print, this word choice runs through audience copy, SEO and imagery selection.

What it is not: A franchise template, an exclusive boutique, or a brand that changes when someone edits someone else's.

Brand personality, in eight words: Confident, personal, premium, clear, knowledgeable, warm, results-focused, local.
Never: Boastful, over-familiar, pretentious, abrupt, jargon-heavy, fluffy, salesy, parochial.

The nine rules, if nothing else is read:

1. Say: "Property is personal." Confident, warm, specific, never salesy.
2. Show: natural light. Architectural, uncluttered, honest colour.
3. Set in: Sinhala MN and Inter. Two families, never a third.
4. Build on: Sage Grey. Half of everything. Basalt for type, Stone to rest the eye.
5. Lead with: the O'Neill mark, always dominant, always with its clear space.
6. Campaign in: Own It, Preparing It, Sold It, Lease It, paired with the plain word wherever status must be instant.
7. Protect: whitespace. If it feels empty, it is probably right.
8. Never: gold, gradients or clichés. Premium comes from restraint, not decoration.
9. Test with: is the property the hero? If the answer is the agency, start again.

Page 4: The mark

Three lockups, no fourth:

- Primary: wordmark over PROPERTY. Default for boards, covers, stationery, the site header. Minimum 40 mm / 150 px wide.
- Secondary: wordmark alone. For tight horizontal bands: email footers, ad bars, vehicle livery, sponsor rows. Minimum 28 mm / 110 px.
- Icon: the O and N monogram. Avatars, favicons, stamps, watermarks, or anywhere the full name already appears nearby. Minimum 8 mm / 32 px.

Clear space: the cap height of the O, on every side, on all three lockups. Nothing enters it: type, rules, a photo edge, another logo, a portal badge. On a vehicle or fascia, measure from the physical panel edge, not the artwork box.

Four colourways, chosen for contrast, never a fifth:

- Basalt on light — the default, any Stone, paper or pale ground.
- Stone on Basalt — dark grounds, night photography, footers.
- Basalt on Stone — print, stationery, card-weight pieces.
- Sage Grey on Basalt — the social avatar, where full Stone reads too stark.

Over photography: use Stone, place it on the quietest part of the frame, or put it on a solid band beside the picture. Never a drop shadow.

Six things never to do to it: don't stretch it (scale both axes together), rotate it, recolour it (gold is the one colour this brand was built to avoid), add shadows or effects, fade it below full opacity (use the Sage colourway instead), or crop, box or draw a rule around it. Also: never sit Sage Grey type on a Sage Grey ground, the two greens measure 1.6:1 and the mark disappears.

Supplied as SVG. Always use the supplied artwork, unmodified.

Four values. Sage Grey is the ground the brand is built on, not an accent on a white one.

Colour	Hex	Role	Share
Sage Grey	#B7C1B3	Signature field: boards, covers, campaign panels, stationery	50%
Basalt	#3A3A3A	Anchor: all type, frames, fascias, footers	30%
Stone	#E2DAD1	Neutral: long-reading ground, mark reversed out of dark photography	15%
Deep Sage	#839C83	Graphic only: rules, markers, icon strokes. Never carries text	5%

Hex values come from the master artwork, never a screenshot. Stone should usually be the paper stock, not an ink.

Approved text pairs (WCAG 2.1, body copy needs 4.5:1, large text needs 3:1):

- Sage Grey on Basalt — 6.1:1, all text
- Basalt on Sage Grey — 6.1:1, all text
- Basalt on Stone — 8.2:1, all text
- Stone on Basalt — 8.2:1, all text
- Deep Sage on Stone — 2.2:1, do not set type
- Stone on Sage Grey — 1.3:1, do not set type

The one rule that matters most: no sage, Sage Grey or Deep Sage, ever carries body copy. If words have to be read, set them in Basalt, or set them on Basalt.

Two families, never a third.

Sinhala MN — display. Headlines, campaign statements, board addresses. One weight, never below 18 px, otherwise its contrast breaks down. Apple-only: a restrained high-contrast serif substitute and a CSS fallback still need to be nominated before launch (see Open decisions).

Inter — text. Everything that has to work: body copy, navigation, agent details, captions, forms, signage information. Weights 300, 400, 500, 600. Nothing heavier.

The scale (screen reference, scale the full set together in print):

Style	Weight / size / line-height	Example
Display	Sinhala MN · 64 / .95	Property is personal
Heading	Sinhala MN · 44 / 1.15	A considered approach
Subhead	Sinhala MN · 28 / 1.25	Northern Gold Coast
Eyebrow	Inter 600 · 11 / .24em, tracked	RECENT RESULTS
Body large	Inter 300 · 19 / 1.7	A rare north-facing residence on a quiet Hope Island street
Body	Inter 400 · 16 / 1.75	Four bedrooms and direct boating access from a private pontoon
Caption	Inter 500 · 12 / .12em, tracked	4 BED · 3 BATH · 2 CAR · 812 M²

Setting rules: one display size per layout, two headline sizes read as a template. Measure to about 65 characters. Never justify, hyphenate or track body copy. Capitals are reserved for lockups, eyebrows and captions, never a paragraph. A headline over three lines is too long.

Page 7: Voice

An agent speaking, not a brochure. Knowledgeable, warm, decisive, brief. Lead with what matters to the client, prefer a specific fact to an inflated adjective. Australian English throughout, no dash used as punctuation, no exclamation marks.

On brand: "North facing, 812 m^2, and the only home on the street with a private pontoon. We think it sells in three weeks."

Off brand: "An absolutely breathtaking, once in a lifetime masterpiece that will take your breath away. A true must see!"

By situation:

- Price reduction — direct and unapologetic.
- Missed result — honest, brief, forward-looking.
- Market commentary — plain, useful, unspun.
- Complaint — human first, process second.

Words to avoid on principle: breathtaking, stunning, must-see, dream home, rare gem, wow factor, once-in-a-lifetime. If a line could describe any agency's listing without changing a fact, rewrite it.

Page 8: The word book

A consistent vocabulary costs nothing to print and makes every touchpoint recognisably O'Neill. The branded term is a device, not a replacement, run it beside the plain word wherever status must be instant (a portal, a footpath, a legal notice).

Instead of	O'Neill says	Why
For Sale	Own It	Hero campaign device, use it selectively
Coming Soon	Preparing It	Pre-market and soft launch
Sold	Sold It	Corrected from "Achieved" in Edition One, see note below
For Lease	Lease It	Rental campaign device
Open Home	Open	The date and time are the hero, not the label
Listing	Property, Residence or Home	By context
Key Features	The Details	Editorial, less generic
Recent Sales	Recent Results	Preferred on collateral
Vendor	Seller	Client-facing language, not industry language
Buyer database	Buyer Network	More human, more premium
Team	Our People	"Team" stays acceptable in navigation

Two words the brand does not own: Property Management and Property Appraisal. Both are searched for by name, branding them would cost enquiries, so they stay plain.

Note: Edition One used "Achieved" for Sold. That conflicted with an earlier confirmed direction to use Sold It. This draft applies Sold It. Flag if Achieved should stand instead.

Signboards. A board gets about two seconds of attention: one campaign word, one mark, one number.

- One campaign word only, never two on the same board: Own It, Preparing It, Sold It or Lease It.
- The mark sits on a Basalt headband, it reads further than a mark floating on sage and won't disappear against a hedge.
- The agent is the smallest element: name, then number, at the foot. A face is optional, a legible phone number is not.
- Sage carries display type only, in Basalt (6.1:1). Nothing lighter than Basalt goes on sage.

- One arrow points, it doesn't decorate: a single chevron, on the side it points to, sized to match the campaign word.

Cards, flyers and stationery. The same system, smaller, nothing new invented at A4 or card size.

- Uncoated stock always: 350 gsm cards, 170 gsm flyers. Gloss undoes the chalky, natural palette.
- Stone is the paper. Specify a warm uncoated stock rather than printing a near-white flat.
- Request a rich black for any large Basalt area, a flat single black looks grey and patchy at size.
- No foil, spot gloss or bevel. Lift a piece with paper weight or a Basalt edge paint, never shine.
- One display size per piece: the campaign word largest, the address next, the agent smallest.

Natural light, honest colour, architectural framing. The property is the hero, if a viewer notices the photography before the house, the shoot has failed.

Do: shoot early or late (long shadows and warm light suit the palette, midday sun blows out water), square the verticals, leave the room breathing (fewer props, nothing that won't be there on inspection day), keep colour honest (grass is not emerald, the Broadwater is not turquoise).

Do not: composite a sunset or sky that wasn't there, run a filter, vignette or heavy graduated wash, set type across the middle of a photograph, use a stock image of a house that is not the house, ever.

Type on photography: where Stone type must sit on an image, measure the scrim against the actual pixels behind it, to 4.5:1. A flat sage wash cannot deliver that at any opacity. Where possible, prefer a solid Basalt, Sage Grey or Stone panel beside the picture over type fighting the picture.

Page 11: Website and digital

Logo: primary 150 px wide minimum, secondary 110 px, icon 32 px. Clear space on every side is the cap height of the O, including inside a header that's already tight.

Type: Inter 300 to 600 for everything functional, Sinhala MN for display only, never below 18 px. Sinhala MN is Apple-only, a nominated substitute and CSS fallback are needed before launch (see Open decisions). Measure to about 65 characters.

Colour: no sage carries body copy, at any size or weight. Set text in Basalt, or on Basalt.

Known fix required: the site currently ships Basalt as #2D2D2D. The master artwork is #3A3A3A. Change the token, not the artwork, and re-check any image scrim measured against the old value.

Retired name: oneillgroup.com.au is no longer the name. Remove it from markup, metadata, redirects and artwork wherever it still appears.

Homepage flow (confirmed direction): Hero → Value → Listings → About Us → CTA block (Sell with us / Our Agents) → News → Testimonial. Generous whitespace, paragraph-length testimonials, subtle scroll/hover motion, no generic star-rating widgets, no stock imagery.

Nothing new on this page, every line is a rule from an earlier one, in the order a piece of work usually breaks.

The mark and the field

1. One of the three supplied lockups, unmodified.
2. Clear space on all four sides is the cap height of the O.
3. At or above minimum size (40 mm / 150 px primary).
4. Colourway chosen for contrast against the ground behind it.
5. Sage Grey carrying the piece, not accenting it.

Type and words

1. Two families only: Sinhala MN for display, Inter for the rest.
2. One display size in the layout.
3. No type set in any sage, at any size.
4. Body copy at 4.5:1 against its ground, large text 3:1.
5. Australian English, no superlatives, no dash as punctuation.

Image and production

1. Natural light, squared verticals, honest colour, no replaced sky.
2. No type across the middle of a photograph.
3. Uncoated stock, Stone as the paper, rich black for large Basalt.
4. No gloss, foil, gradient, bevel or shadow anywhere.
5. oneillgroup.com.au does not appear anywhere.

Page 13: Open decisions and contact

Four items are still open. Nothing above should be treated as final until these are resolved.

1. Service area: Northern Gold Coast, or Gold Coast-wide? Edition One says Northern Gold Coast, an earlier working direction said Gold Coast-wide. This affects audience copy, SEO and image selection.
2. Sold copy: this draft uses Sold It. Confirm this over Edition One's Achieved.

3. Non-Apple display font: Sinhala MN is Apple-only. A restrained high-contrast serif substitute needs to be nominated for Windows, Android and web fallback.
4. App/social icon finish: Stone on Basalt, or Sage Grey on Basalt. One has to win before launch.

One name. One standard, every time.
